

EVMS MEDICAL GROUP
POLICY: Medical and Other Health Care Student Documentation	DATE: 07-01-1996
CATEGORY: COMPLIANCE	REVIEWED/ REVISED: April-13	Page 1 of 1

PURPOSE: To identify that portion of medical student documentation that may be used by the teaching physician for billing purposes.

POLICY: The only documentation by medical students that may be used by the teaching physician is their documentation of the review of systems (“ROS”) and past family social history (“PFSH”). The teaching physician may NOT reference a medical student’s documentation of physical exam findings or medical decision-making in his/her personal note. The teaching physician must verify and re-document the history of present illness (“HPI”), as well as perform and re-document the physical exam and medical decision-making activities of the visit service. This rule also applies to documentation by other health care students including, but not limited to, physician assistant students and nurse practitioner students.
