Eastern Virginia Medical School/EVMS

EVMS enjoys a unique relationship with the people of southeastern Virginia, an area known as Hampton Roads. It began when community leaders created EVMS in 1973 to address the region’s serious shortage of physicians. Today, the relationship is stronger than ever as EVMS continues to safeguard the community’s health.

For instance, EVMS has added and enlarged educational programs to keep pace with the region’s growth. Similarly, the school’s clinical and research missions are tailored to address the health issues that confront the people of Hampton Roads. EVMS researchers and physician-scientists work together to rapidly translate laboratory discoveries into new treatments to help patients.

Given EVMS’ deep roots in the community, it’s no surprise that students, faculty and staff embrace the school’s commitment to service. A key to the school’s community focus is the M. Foscue Brock Institute for Community and Global Health, which is harnessing this enthusiasm and collaborating with community partners to address key health issues. For students, this translates into curriculum reforms that encourage a lifelong commitment to service.

On the following pages, you will learn more about the breadth and depth of the EVMS impact in this community and beyond.

Education
EVMS attracts applicants from across the country who seek out the school’s collaborative environment and share the institution’s commitment to community service.

In addition to the MD program, the school offers training in a growing number of health professions. EVMS also trains medical-school graduates in their chosen specialty, provides specialized training in the form of fellowships and sponsors ongoing Continuing Medical Education.

Graduate Medical Education (Residency Training)
Once they graduate from medical school, new physicians must go through at least another three years of training in their chosen specialty. The duration of this residency varies from specialty to specialty. EVMS hosts 369 residents in 39 residency, fellowship and internship programs:

Medical Modeling and Simulation
EVMS was among the first medical schools in the country to use “standardized” patients — trained individuals who portray patients — to teach students how to perform clinical exams and how to communicate effectively with patients. With the establishment of the Sentara Center for Simulation and Immersive Learning at EVMS, the school continues to be an innovator in developing new ways to use technology to teach common medical procedures and to provide students with a safe environment in which to practice and perfect their technique. The simulation center is accredited by the Society for Simulation in Healthcare.

The center has logged 57,320 hours of simulation training at the facility with 13,356 students — both from EVMS and other institutions locally.

The center also works offsite with 47 external clients, including other medical schools.

The center has recently begun offering life-support courses, with 13,660 students certified in basic and advanced lifesaving training.

Staff includes 22 full-time and 140 other employees, including standardized patients and life-support instructors.

EVMS faculty members not only educate and train students, they provide world-class medical care to more than 1,600 people every day.
Patient Care

EVMS full-time physicians and EVMS-affiliated physicians and healthcare providers care for patients in locations throughout the region. Many are sought after by patients near and far in search of the best-available care and innovative treatments.

Some of the care is unique. For instance, EVMS specialists are the only ones in the region to provide care for women experiencing a high-risk pregnancy.

EVMS Medical Group

150 full-time physicians and 40 physician extenders are affiliated with EVMS Medical Group, a not-for-profit physician group supporting EVMS. In addition to their duties as teachers and scientists, these physicians and surgeons care for more than 1,600 people every day at 29 clinical practice sites.

EVMS has always enjoyed a close connection with the people of Hampton Roads. That relationship entered a new era with the establishment of the M. Foscue Brock Institute for Community and Global Health.

The Brock Institute has become the focal point for integrating EVMS’ clinical, educational and research programs, enabling EVMS to take a major step toward its vision of becoming the most community-oriented school of medicine and health professions in the nation.

The interdisciplinary institute is a model for medical schools nationwide by helping to train the next generation of community-minded physicians and healthcare professionals and building a robust training program that offers students meaningful service experiences.

The donation from the late Macon F. Brock Jr., co-founder and chairman of Dollar Tree Inc., and his wife, Joan Brock, is one of the largest individual gifts ever made to EVMS. Their donation, made in honor of Mr. Brock’s father, a Norfolk physician and community volunteer, has allowed the school’s service programs to expand and deepen their impact on both local and global health issues.

Community outreach
EVMS is one of the first medical schools to make service learning a formal part of the medical curriculum. In 2017-2018, EVMS MD students completed more than 5,400 hours of service in one of 16 initiatives. One shining example of how EVMS gives back to the community is HOPES, a student-led free clinic, which draws an average of 11 student volunteers on any given night. The clinic adapts to patient needs, adding a night for women’s health and provisions for Spanish-speaking patients.

“As we help communities that are underserved and give them more opportunities, their health outcomes improve – even before they get to the doctor’s office.”

Anne Svejda, Physician Assistant Class of 2020
EVMS opened in 1973 with just 27 students. Today, there are more than 1,350 students in 21 programs designed to meet the workforce needs of the community.
Financial Overview

EVMS is a state-assisted, independent, community-based medical school. Unlike most medical schools, EVMS does not own a hospital and is not part of a larger university system.

EVMS has seen steady growth in the last several years. The school continues to enjoy strong support from business, organizations and individuals who appreciate the school’s value to the community.

Econimic Impact

When noted regional economist James V. Koch, PhD, last reported on his evaluation of the school’s economic imprint on the region in 2017, he found that EVMS-related economic activity grew at more than twice the pace of the region in the last five years. He estimated the school’s annual impact at $1.2 billion, a 21.4 percent increase from just five years ago.

- Annual economic impact: $1.2 billion
- EVMS rank among private-sector employers in Hampton Roads: 12
- Estimated annual impact of EVMS alumni in Hampton Roads: $446 million*
- Value of charitable services, including uncompensated care: $63 million
- Economic ripple effect from EVMS activities: $655 million
- Additional jobs generated locally because of EVMS economic ripple effect: 4,900

“For a lot of businesses, it becomes harder to grow as they get older. But EVMS has actually accelerated its growth under President Homan and the current faculty and staff. They’ve done a really great job.”

David Arias, Rector, EVMS Board of Visitors

EVMS ranks 12th among the region’s largest private-sector employers
Facilities

EVMS has modern facilities for education, research and patient care. The school has made significant capital investments in the last few years in addition to opening an education and research building known as Lester Hall. EVMS began construction of a new education and academic administration building in the spring of 2018 with occupancy scheduled for 2020.

The recent renovations at EVMS and elsewhere in the Eastern Virginia Medical Center have made space for two large lawns and adjoining areas to relax and enjoy the outdoors.
