The EVMS Summer Scholars program draws a range of undergraduate students interested in careers in medicine and the health professions.
Eastern Virginia Medical School | EVMS

EVMS enjoys a unique relationship with the people of southeastern Virginia, an area known as Hampton Roads. It began when community leaders created EVMS in 1973 to address the region’s serious shortage of physicians. Today, the relationship is stronger than ever as EVMS continues to safeguard the community’s health.

For instance, EVMS has added and enlarged educational programs to keep pace with the region’s growth. Similarly, the school’s clinical and research missions are tailored to address the health issues that confront the people of Hampton Roads. EVMS researchers and physician-scientists work together to rapidly translate laboratory discoveries into new treatments to help patients.

Given EVMS’ deep roots in the community, it’s no surprise that students, faculty and staff embrace the school’s commitment to service. A key to the school’s community focus is the M. Foscue Brock Institute for Community and Global Health, which is harnessing this enthusiasm and collaborating with community partners to address key health issues. For students, this translates into curriculum reforms that encourage a lifelong commitment to service.

On the following pages, you will learn more about the breadth and depth of the EVMS impact in this community and beyond.

EVMS Mission
Eastern Virginia Medical School is an academic health center dedicated to achieving excellence in medical and health professions education, research and patient care. We value creating and fostering a diverse and cohesive faculty, professional staff and student body as the surest way to achieve our mission. Adhering to the highest ethical standards, we will strive to improve the health of our community and to be recognized as a national center of intellectual and clinical strength in medicine.

Our Vision
Eastern Virginia Medical School will be recognized as the most community-oriented school of medicine and health professions in the nation.

EVMS Board of Visitors

EVMS educational programs are tailored to meet the workforce demands of the region, the state and the nation.
Education

EVMS attracts applicants from across the country who seek out the school’s collaborative environment and share the institution’s commitment to community service.

In addition to the MD program, the school offers training in a growing number of health professions. EVMS also trains medical-school graduates in their chosen specialty, provides specialized training in the form of fellowships and sponsors ongoing Continuing Medical Education.

Graduate Medical Education (Residency Training)

Once they graduate from medical school, new physicians must go through at least another three years of training in their chosen specialty. The duration of this residency varies from specialty to specialty. EVMS hosts 372 residents in 41 residency, fellowship and internship programs:

Teaching Affiliates

EVMS does not own a hospital. Instead, the school has established working relationships with healthcare facilities across the region where student and medical residents learn in a variety of clinical settings. In addition to the major facilities listed below, EVMS also has teaching affiliations with approximately 150 private practices and 10 additional clinical facilities throughout Hampton Roads.

Beth Sholom Village [Virginia Beach]
Bon Secours DePaul Medical Center [Norfolk]
Bon Secours Maryview Medical Center [Portsmouth]

Veterans Affairs Medical Center Hampton
Continuing Medical Education (CME)

Educational activities sponsored by Continuing Medical Education (CME) help physicians maintain competence and skills to provide the highest level of patient care in the Hampton Roads area. The EVMS CME office has received the highest level of accreditation, with commendation, from its accrediting body.

Medical Modeling and Simulation

EVMS was among the first medical schools in the country to use “standardized” patients — trained individuals who portray patients — to teach students how to perform clinical exams and how to communicate effectively with patients. With the establishment of the Sentara Center for Simulation and Immersive Learning at EVMS, the school continues to be an innovator in developing new ways to use technology to teach common medical procedures and to provide students with a safe environment in which to practice and perfect their technique. The simulation center is accredited by the Society for Simulation in Healthcare.

The center has logged more than 58,000 hours of simulation training at the facility with 14,000 learners — both from EVMS and other institutions locally.
The center also works offsite with 85 external clients, including other medical schools.
The center has recently begun offering life-support courses, with more than 15,000 students certified in basic and advanced lifesaving training.

Staff includes 22 full-time and 140 other employees, including standardized patients and life-support instructors.

Accreditation

Below are the major agencies that accredit educational programs and activities at EVMS.

Research

More than 100 EVMS faculty members are engaged in basic and clinical research focused in areas where the community has pressing needs. EVMS continually strives to enhance its research enterprise in order to improve the health of the people of Hampton Roads and beyond. EVMS carries out focused research in several specialty centers, including:

Biorepository
A College of American Pathology accredited program to acquire, process and share bio-specimens for biomedical research.

Leroy T. Canoles Jr. Cancer Research Center
Dedicated to translational research studies that lead directly to improved care and new biomarkers.

Clinical programs with community outcomes
The Glennan Center for Geriatrics and Gerontology and the Community Health and Research division of Pediatrics conduct research on the special needs of the community.

CONRAD
The center focuses on prevention of sexually transmitted diseases in developing countries.

EVMS-Sentara Healthcare Analytics and Delivery Science Institute
Conducts collaborative epidemiological research to improve population health management and healthcare delivery.

Jones Institute for Reproductive Medicine
Conducts research in menopause, infertility, contraception, pre-implantation genetic diagnosis and more.

National Center for Collaboration in Medical Modeling and Simulation
A joint project of EVMS and academic, governmental and commercial partners that works to improve patient care by advancing simulation-based training.

Strelitz Diabetes Center
Conducts a broad range of research focused on minimizing complications of diabetes and developing new treatments to prevent or reverse Type 1 diabetes.

George L. Wright Jr. Center for Biomedical Proteomics
Provides state-of-the-art mass spectrometers and analytical tools for biomarker discovery & proteomic disease analysis.

Technology Highlights

US patents and applications: 64

In addition to the centers, many departments also conduct research in a myriad of areas, including:

Complement and inflammation modulation
Ear, neck and head disorders
Emergency medical treatments
Health disparities
Infectious disease and immunology
Maternal-fetal medicine, general obstetrics, gynecology and urogynecology
Psychiatric and behavioral disorders
Pediatric diseases, genetics, neonatalogy

Research Publications
Scholarly activity is one measure of an institution’s research output. Researchers typically submit their study results to peer-reviewed publications so that colleagues everywhere can keep pace with the latest discoveries and developments. Below are figures related to articles and publications authored by EVMS faculty.

Journal articles: 623
Books and book chapters: 14

637 journal articles, books and book chapters
EVMS faculty members not only educate and train students, they provide world-class medical care to more than 1,600 people every day.
Patient Care
EVMS full-time physicians and EVMS-affiliated physicians and healthcare providers care for patients in locations throughout the region. Many are sought after by patients near and far in search of the best-available care and innovative treatments.

Some of the care is unique. For instance, EVMS specialists are the only ones in the region to provide care for women experiencing high-risk pregnancies.

EVMS Medical Group
150 full-time physicians and 40 physician extenders are affiliated with EVMS Medical Group, a not-for-profit physician group supporting EVMS. In addition to their duties as teachers and scientists, these physicians and surgeons care for more than 1,600 people every day at 29 clinical practice sites.

Community

Established through a grassroots campaign, EVMS was founded by the community for the community. So it should come as no surprise that EVMS enjoys a special connection with the people of Hampton Roads.

Faculty, students and staff strive daily to fulfill the school’s vision to be the nation’s most community-oriented school of medicine and health professions.

For instance, EVMS students established HOPES, the first student-run free clinic in Virginia. In the latest fiscal year, 674 students and 58 faculty volunteered their time to help hundreds of patients at HOPES Clinic. The clinic adapts to patient needs, adding a night for women’s health and provisions for Spanish-speaking patients.

For decades, EVMS students have volunteered their time to help others. The MD curriculum now has a formal component known as community-engaged learning. There are 23 such initiatives that involve 543 students and faculty. In the last year, they served 2,675 individuals in the community.

The relatively small EVMS students body has established more than 75 clubs, programs and initiatives that serve Hampton Roads. In a given year, these groups will account for more than 40,000 service hours.

The M. Foscue Brock Institute for Community and Global Health has become the focal point for integrating EVMS’ clinical, educational and research programs. The interdisciplinary institute is a model for medical schools nationwide by helping to train the next generation of community-minded physicians and healthcare professionals and building a robust training program that offers students meaningful service experiences.

“There’s nothing more amazing than seeing the look on a kid’s face when they see a beating heart for the first time on ultrasound. You see the wheels turning and the sparks of interest in science [emerging].”

Dana Baraki, MD Class of 2022

Before they even start classes, new EVMS students go out in force for a community service project. The activity helps reinforce EVMS’ community-oriented vision.
EVMS opened in 1973 with just 27 students. Today, there are more than 1,350 students in 21 programs designed to meet the workforce needs of the community.
Financial Overview
EVMS is a state-assisted, independent, community-based medical school. Unlike most medical schools, EVMS does not own a hospital and is not part of a larger university system.

EVMS has seen steady growth in the last several years. The school continues to enjoy strong support from business, organizations and individuals who appreciate its value to the community.

“[EVMS] is a true success story. And it’s a community success besides because so many people from the community and the cities are involved. It’s a group of people coming together for a very vital task and doing some very good things.”

Economist James Koch, PhD

Economic Impact
When noted regional economist James Koch, PhD, last reported on his evaluation of the school’s economic imprint on the region in 2017, he found that EVMS-related economic activity grew at more than twice the pace of the region in the last five years. He estimated the school’s annual impact at $1.2 billion, a 21.4 percent increase from just five years earlier.

Annual economic impact: $1.2 billion

Facilities

EVMS has modern facilities for education, research and patient care. The school has made significant capital investments in the last decade. In the spring of 2018, EVMS began construction of a new education and academic administration building with occupancy scheduled for 2020.

The recent renovations at EVMS and elsewhere in the Eastern Virginia Medical Center have made space for two large lawns and adjoining areas to relax and enjoy the outdoors.

EVMS facilities include:
